Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine whether the use of a computerized decision support system (DSS) could improve the performance of a group of novice nurses in a simulated emergency department. The DSS was designed to assist in the diagnosis of patients presenting with chest pain. A total of 10 participants were divided into two groups: one group used the DSS, and the other group did not. The results showed that the group using the DSS performed significantly better than the control group in terms of time taken to reach a diagnosis and the number of incorrect diagnoses.
